5. Introduction by Annette Groth

Lived in London for nine years. Got the question “How is it like to be outside of the EU?” the most.

The Brexit process is chaotic. Theresa May deserves respect. She works hard. Wonders why Theresa May has not made any alliances earlier. No one knows how this will end.

6. Introduction by Espen Aas

It has been a long story of arguments leading up to the referendum.

The referendum was meant to silence the arguments, but it has led to chaos and no one knows what is going to happen.

Throughout the UK, people are not agreed on the results of the referendum. Now Theresa May has difficulties on arranging a deal in which people are agreed upon.

7. Introduction by Richard Wood Going to give the hall five propositions:

1. We should have seen this coming
2. A deal is better than no deal
Britain and the countries around the UK need a deal.
3. Brexit is not something that is going to be settled overnight
4. Europe needs the UK close to the EU
5. Norway and the UK will have a good relation after Brexit

8. Sofa chat with questions from the hall

Did the Brits know what they were voting for when they were voting yes or no? They were asked a yes/no question on a problem with many answers. All Brits had their own idea of what Brexit was supposed to be.

There was no plan for what would happen if there was a no. If there's going to be a new referendum, one would have to be sure that the public's opinion has changed. The polls remain very close, and so a new referendum might not be possible.

8.1 Benjamin Haslev: Could you comment on how the road to a “no deal”-Brexit looks like now? Is it a possibility?

8.2 Arild Ohren: What would happen with research projects if Brexit were to happen? Will the cooperation between colleges suffer?

9. Break 19:25-19.40

10. Continued sofa chat with questions from the hall

8.3 Magnus Thorslund: Do you think the Independence Group is a positive new part of politics in the UK?

8.4 Bor de Kock: We see more and more fake news. Do you think we live in a post-truth society? And what can we do if we do?

8.5 Eivind Rindal: When will there be a new election in Britain?

That may be the only thing that can solve the problem Brexit it. 8.6

Nils Arne Lindaas: Har Brexit gått på bekostning av innenrikspolitikken?

8.7 Joseph Whittington: Why is the rules for voting what they are? And what will happen to people when they reach Brexit? And what will happen to people living outside of the UK?

8.8 Tony Back: What would the implications of the referendum to the british society be? Would you end up with referendums all over the place?
